The United States Court of International Trade is an Article III court with exclusive nationwide jurisdiction over civil actions against the United States, its agencies and officers. Its jurisdiction also includes certain civil actions brought by the United States, arising out of import transactions and the administration and enforcement of the federal customs and international trade laws. The Court reviews administrative decisions of the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection involving the tariff laws of the United States, including the classification and valuation of imported merchandise. The Court hears judicial challenges to determinations by the United States Department of Commerce and the United States International Trade Commission pertaining to the antidumping and countervailing duty laws. In addition, the Court reviews decisions by the Secretary of Labor, Commerce or Agriculture certifying workers, businesses or agricultural commodity procedures respectively eligible for assistance due to economic injury caused by import competition. The Court also possesses exclusive jurisdiction of actions brought by the United States to: (1) recover civil penalties for fraud, gross negligence or negligence in the entry of imported merchandise; (2) recover upon a bond relating to the importation of merchandise; or (3) recover customs duties. Judges are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. These are Article III judgeships to which members are appointed for life, pending good behavior. Cases are determined by a single judge. Cases raising a constitutional issue or cases with broad significant implications may be assigned by the chief judge to a three-judge panel. Appeals from the Court of International Trade are heard by the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. The Court is located in New York City, but sessions may be held anywhere within the United States. The Court is also authorized to hold hearings in foreign countries.
