The United States Court of Federal Claims, formerly known as the United States Claims Court, has jurisdiction over claims seeking money judgments against the United States. A claim must be founded upon the United States Constitution; an act of Congress; the regulation of an executive department; an express or implied-in-fact contract with the United States, or damages, liquidated or unliquidated, in cases not sounding in tort. Appeals are to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. All judges on the court are appointed by the President, with Senate consent, for 15-year terms. The chief judge is selected by the President to serve until the age of seventy or until another chief judge is chosen. Retirees may serve as senior judges on assigned cases.

Number of Judgeships: 9

The United States Court of International Trade is an Article III court with exclusive nationwide jurisdiction over civil actions against the United States, its agencies and officers. Its jurisdiction also includes certain civil actions brought by the United States, arising out of import transactions and the administration and enforcement of the federal customs and international trade laws. The Court reviews administrative decisions of the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection involving the tariff laws of the United States, including the classification and valuation of imported merchandise. The Court hears judicial challenges to determinations by the United States Department of Commerce and the United States International Trade Commission pertaining to the antidumping and countervailing duty laws. In addition, the Court reviews decisions by the Secretary of Labor, Commerce or Agriculture certifying workers, businesses or agricultural commodity procedures respectively eligible for assistance due to economic injury caused by import competition. The Court also possesses exclusive jurisdiction of actions brought by the United States to: (1) recover civil penalties for fraud, gross negligence or negligence in the entry of imported merchandise; (2) recover upon bond relating to the importation of merchandise; or (3) recover customs duties. Judges are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. These are Article III judgeships to which members are appointed for life, pending good behavior. Cases are determined by a single judge. Cases raising a constitutional issue or cases with broad significant implications may be assigned by the chief judge to a three-judge panel. Appeals from the Court of International Trade are heard by the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. The Court is located in New York City, but sessions may be held anywhere within the United States. The Court is also authorized to hold hearings in foreign countries.

The United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces hears matters of law under the Uniform Code of Military Justice involving an officer, the death penalty, a sentence of one year or more imprisonment or dismissal, a dishonorable discharge or bad conduct discharge certified by the service's Judge Advocate General or the General Counsel of the Department of Transportation acting for the Coast Guard. The court's jurisdiction is worldwide. Appeals to this court come in response to court-martials in the Army, Navy-Marine Corps, Air Force and Coast Guard Courts of Criminal Appeals. Rulings can be appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States for review. The Washington, DC-based court is exclusively an appellate criminal court consisting of five civilian judges appointed to 15-year terms by the President with Senate confirmation.

The Alien Terrorist Removal Court was created by the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996. Applications for removal proceedings are brought by the Attorney General of the United States after being initiated and investigated by the Department of Justice. Decisions made by this court can be appealed to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. The court is made up of five district court judges from five judicial circuits. The judges are appointed for five year terms by the Chief Justice of the United States. Judges may be redesignated by the Chief Justice.

The Judicial Conference of the United States is the principal policy making body concerned with the administration of the United States Courts. The specific duties of the Judicial Conference include surveying the conditions of business in the courts of the United States, preparing plans for the assignment of judges to or from courts of appeals or district courts, promoting uniformity of management procedures and the expeditious conduct of court business, the reviewing of circuit council conduct and disability orders, and carrying on a continuous study of the operation and effect of general rules of practice and procedure in use within the federal courts. In addition, the Judicial Conference supervises the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts and operates through a network of committees created to address and advise on a variety of subjects dealing with administration of the courts. The Chief Justice of the United States is the presiding officer of the conference. Membership is comprised of the chief judges of each judicial circuit, the chief judge of the Court of International Trade, and a district judge from each regional judicial circuit. A circuit chief judge's term on the conference is concurrent with his or her term as chief judge of the circuit, seven years or until seventy years of age, whichever comes first. District judge representatives are elected for terms of not less than three nor more than five successive years, as established by majority vote of all circuit and district judges of their circuit. Terms on the conference of elected members are effective and expire on October 1 of any given year. The Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts serves as the Judicial Conference Secretary.

Created by an Act of Congress in 1939, the Administrative Office of the United States Courts provides management and program support and administrative services to the federal courts. It implements the policies of the Judicial Conference of the United States and provides staff support and legal counsel to the Judicial Conference's committees. The services provided by the Administrative Office include program, legal and administrative assistance to Article III, bankruptcy and magistrate judges and court employees. It also handles coordination between and among the judicial branch, the legislative branch, the executive branch and state courts. The Administrative Office is responsible for collecting and reporting judiciary statistics and supports program activity in the areas of court administration, defender services, and probation and pretrial services. Appointment of the Administrative Office Director is made by the Chief Justice of the United States, in consultation with the Judicial Conference of the United States.

The Federal Judicial Center, established by Congress in 1967, is the research and education agency of the federal judicial system. The Center's duties include conducting and promoting orientation and continuing education and training for federal judges, court employees, and others; developing recommendations about the operation and study of the federal courts; and conducting and promoting research on federal judicial procedures, court operations, and history. By statute, the Chief Justice of The Supreme Court of the United States chairs the Center's Board, which also includes the director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts and seven judges elected by the Judicial Conference of the United States. The Board appoints the Center's director and deputy director and in turn the director appoints the Center's staff.
